Auditorium* A/V Overview

Lynn Financial Center's state-of-the-art auditorium includes a customized, display-equipped lectern and a Smart Sympodium interactive panel that allows for annotative capabilities. At the heart of the auditorium's display system is a ceiling-mounted DLP™ projector by Christie, known for its high-resolution, reliability, and ability to integrate into a system and accommodate future system growth. Completing the array of sophisticated technology is Da-Lite's 7' x 9' ceiling-mounted recessed electric projection screen.

Sources to the system originate from the presenter's lectern, and users have the ability to select from the options that include PCs, laptops, a DVD/VCR combo system, document cameras or the TV tuner. These sources can also be previewed on either the touch panel or Sympodium before being displayed on the large projection screen. Control of the newly installed technology is accomplished through Crestron's 15" wired color touch screen control panel, which manages all basic functions of the AV components. Additionally, controls for the high-tech lighting and window shade system are interfaced into the panel.

The auditorium's sound system utilizes a power amplifier for all presentation sources, including the wireless lavalier microphone for the lecturer. The strategic distribution and power of the audio system was also enhanced by the installation of eight ceiling-mounted speakers. All built-in theater style seating features retractable arm desks for active work surface and power outlet for laptops.
